President Sullivan Says—
The American representatives who will compete at London in the Olympic games next year will come from every section of the country. It is a question of national pride and not individual honor. Of course we can raise a sufficient fund to send a team abroad, but that is not the question. Other countries make grants to athletes when they represent their countries, and Americans should not be behind in this respect. I believe that the representatives at Washington will recognize the importance of this athletic meeting as a national institution to be worthly upheld and that the appropriation will follow."

The committee appointed by President The committee appointed by President Sullivan embraces every branch of athletics followed in the United States, and it is the intention of the executive committee to send one of more representatives to compete in every event on the m. even to cycling, fencing, wres-

HANDBALL AT 'VARSITY. Tournament Will Be Played Off Soon.

The handball tournament at the uni-ersity has been abandoned for the last The handball tournament at the university has been abandoned for the last two weeks, because of the orchestra stand that was erected on the east wall for the junior promenade. This is where the handball court is situated. The stand was left up for the athletic extravaganza Friday evening, but was taken down Saturday, so that the tournament can be played off in the near future. The basketball reams are still busy. There were a number of games played last week and some more scheduled for this. The freshmen were beaten by one point. The faculty is beginning to feel athrice of late and has organized a basketwell team and a baseball team. There are some ex-college men on the faculty who have good college records, and these with Chach Maddock ought to make some first lass teams. The freshmen have of the fraternities the baseball team.

Case for State Commissioner

A fish hatchery has been established in what is known as the Powell slough near Utah lake for the purpose of protecting and propagating the bass of Utah lake. The Madsen family have been selming for bass for a few weeks past, with the privilege, we understand, of marketing the common fish caught in the seine. We are reliably informed that during the time of the aforementioned seining something like 120 bass have been caught, but that up to the 20th of this month not a single bass have been caught, but that up to the 20th of this month not a single bass have been caught, but that up to the 20th of this month not a single bass have been shipped away, and the presumption is that they have been placed upon the market for sale. If this be true the fish and game laws of our state have been flagrantly violated and the offenders ought to be handled. It will be well for Fish and Game Warden Madsen to make some explanation in certain quarters is being exercised over it. We are advised that it is all true that 120 bass have been caught for the hatchery and that not one of them has been placed in the hatchery, and our advisers further say that they will forfeit $1,000 if these facts cannot be proven.

but still reproaches continue to fall on us.

"After all, what good would an exhibition do? We would just show off a little, and afterward, ten to one, some of our secrets would be stolen from us."

He smiled and said:

"You know the story of the amateur conjurer? At dinner in a hotel one night he leaned forward and, very proud of his skill, said to the man opposite him:

"Excuse me—there's something there.'

"And separating the leaves of the man's salad, he discussed a diamond ring.

"Dear, dear, how carsiess," exclaimed the man. "I'm always leaving things about like that."

"And he took the ring up and handed it over his shoulder to the waitress.

"A little present for you," he said "Our showing off." Mr. Wright ended, "would have, I'm sure, some such result as that."

arranged beneath the Langtry banner with every team that can be formed in those states. St. Paul will head a small army in her fight for the 1908 convention, and Duluth and Winnipeg will not be the weakest of her warriors. Then Chicago, the ten-pin stronghold, will not be found wanting in numerical lovality to head. the ten-pin stronghold, will not be found wanting in numerical loyalty to her favorite sons, Pasdeloup and Pfeifer. Kansas City has in grooming a candidate for the executive committee. Washington, Baltimore and other cities in that territory are interested in the re-election of Ed Meyers. Philadelphia and New York, looking forward to future national honors and the time when the present breach in national ranks will be history, will be prominent factors in the business proceedings of the convention. All this, addceedings of the convention. All this, added to the fact that G. H. Rautenberg, a well known St. Louisian, is an avowed candidate for secretary, means that bowl ers the country over will be in attendance in surpassing and surprising strength.

Many Entries Coming In.

So thoroughly has the country been covered by the literature distributed by the local publicity committee that entries are arriving from cities heretofore unrepare arriving from cities heretofore unrepresented in national tournaments. The smaller cities of Indiana. Illinois, Ohio and other central western states will make a decided increase in attendance over that of former years. From so distant a point as Burlington, Vt., comes assurance of the entry of at least one team. It is possible also that Vancouver, B. C., will send a team. So when it is remembered that Gaiveston, Tex., will be represented, as well as a majority of the larger cities between these widely separated extremes the term "national" seems decidedly appropriate when used in connection with the St. Louis tournament.

secretary Sweeney of the local company says: "It is alleged by a few that the recent estimate figures given out from this office, lack the basis of fact. Estimates at best are unreliable, yet I firmly believe I am in a position to read the indications aright, and, though, a week has gone by and the date of the tournament is that much nearer. I see no cause to revise my previous statement."

Three Hundred Teams.

Three Hundred Teams.

"If anything, it appears that the estimate may be safely increased from 257 to 300 five-men teams. Entries are arriving from unexpected sources, the political activity of certain men and cities means increased attendance and the general prosperity enjoyed by the game and its followers, combined with the favorable railway rate concessions, reduced hotel rates and arrangements made to care for the entertainment of visiting bowlers, convinces me that the figures will not lie in this case at least.

"A few years ago ten-pin bowling in St. Louis was a fad of a few. Today it is the sport of the masses. There are thousands invested in the game today, where there were dollars in the past, proving the game has come to stay—capital does not chase fire-flies. What is true of St. Louis is proportionately true of all other cities, hence the increase in the number of followers of the game must necessarily redound to the benefit of the national meet in St. Louis next month, meaning a greater number of contestants than was possible even twelve months hence." ### ROBBED THE SUTLER.

A Story of the Twentieth Illinois Punished by Grant.

(Chicago Record-Herald.) To a group of comrades of the Columbia post of the Grand army of the Republic the other evening, Captain Oscar Ludwig told an interesting story of the summary punishment meted out by General Grant to the entire regiment of the Twentieth Illinois infantry, which was referred to as a precedent by President Roosevelt in his recent communication to congress relative to his action in the affair at Brownsville, Tex., where three companies of negro troops were summarily dismissed from the service for the act of a few in attacking citizens.

"I was a member of the Twentieth Illinois infantry for more than four years," said Captain Ludwig, "and was with the regiment at the time of the vandalism cited. A sutler's store at Jackson. Tenn., where eight regiments were assembled to intercept the confederates, was broken into and supplies estimated to be worth $1,240 were taken. "It was known at the time that men of all or nearly all of the eight regiments had participated in the raid for eatables and liquid refreshment. The only trace of the suftler's supply discovered, however, was part of a box of cigars in one of the tents of the Twen-

"An official investigation failed to fasten the crime upon any of the soldiers individually, as no one would admit knowledge of the affair. The general feeling was that among so many it would be impossible to ferret out the wrongdoers and nothing would be done about the matter. And then no one cared to inform on his comrades.

"But General Grant was determined to put a stop to such disorder and to suppress any tendency to lawlessness among the troops. As none of the members would come forward to aid in securing a satisfactory explanation as to the presence of those few cigars in our quarters, the entire regiment was made to suffer.

"The officer commanding the regiment and the officer of the day were dishonorably dismissed from the service for neglecting to discover the guilty parties, and the whole Twentieth Illiois, officers and men, were fined pro rata according to pay as amount sufficient to cover the $1,240 loss to the sutler. My share of the fine was $5.18. The fines were deducted from our pay.
"A good deal of good-natured fun was poked at us by the other soldiers for having paid such an exorbitant were said to nave been worth only $500, and not $1,240, the amount of the claim put in by the sutler and which was allowed. It was the talk of the was allowed. It was the talk of the camp that some of the good things taken in the raid found their way to the officers' quarters. So the boys of the is the best protection that you can oben in the raid found their way to the officers' quarters. So the boys of the Twentieth used to answer the raillery of those of other regiments in this
